Our Furry Friends are Amazing

Robert Luken
 CONTRIBUTING WRITER

I am a firm believer that our "Four-Legged Furry Friends" can teach us many things. In a recent article I wrote, "Unlike people, dogs do not prejudge humans. Their relationship with humans is not tainted by prejudices or misconceptions."

"In other words, our furry friends accept us in a non-biased manner regardless of our religious views, our sexual preference, our ethnic or racial makeup or our political affiliation."

Dogs live non complicated lives; hence, they find joy in simple doggie pleasures: like a pat on the head with a kind word, playing fetch, romping with a fellow canine, playing with a favorite toy, a walk in the park or a deserved siesta in the cooling shade of a tree.

"Wouldn't our lives be more fulfilling and less stressful if we humans modeled our lives like those of our furry friends?"

Based upon my experiences with my Nero, the abused terrier that I adopted while living in Germany and now Sasha whom I adopted from the Ripley County Humane Society, I can attest that I have learned many things from my beloved furry friends.

I think that the most valuable lesson which I have learned from them is to constantly strive to appreciate the wonders and blessings of each and every day since we are, like all living things, mortal beings.

The reality of how precious life is and how quickly it can be taken from us was tragically shown when I recently lost a dear friend of over fifty years to a farming accident. Like so many things that we take for granted, but especially family and friends - once lost there is a terrible void in our lives.

There are other attributes which dogs possess which we humans might consider modeling. Recently I was browsing the internet and came across a poster that I think cleverly sums up what we can learn from our furry friends. It read:

"My dog taught me everything that I need to know. It's ok sometimes to just eat and sleep. When you fall down, get back up, shake it off; forget about it and go on. Be very brave no matter your size. Make your own fun. Unleash your talents. Learn new tricks no matter your age. Make new friends. Sniff out opportunities. Chase after your dreams. When your loved ones come home, always run to greet them. At the end of the day it is best to snuggle no matter what has happened. Every day is a brand new day. Just be happy!"

In my opinion, that's advice well worth adopting into our complex lives.

At the Ripley County Humane Society there are many cats and dogs that are patiently waiting for that very special person to adopt them into a loving Forever Home.

If you are considering bringing a pet into your life, please consider adopting a shelter animal. I can personally attest that the pet will bring bountiful joy to your home.

The RCHS is a private NO KILL shelter that is dependent upon adoptions and the support of the public to provide the care for the animals that are entrusted to them.

Their website is www.rchumane.com where the pets that are hoping to be adopted into a Forever Home can be viewed.

If adoption is not a possibility but you wish to support the shelter, detailed information can be found under "Ways to Help." All support will be appreciated.

When estate planning please consider the humane society as one of your beneficiaries.

As always, I like to end with a quote. In this case, it is so undeniably true for me.

"A dog is the only thing that can mend a crack in your broken heart." Judy Desmond
